

PEBA National Conference 2011

Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer, Fleet St, London

Friday 10th June

Building the Recovery

The Planning and Environment Bar Association's 4th National Conference takes a good hard look at the changing planning landscape being introduced by the Coalition. Sustainable development has enormous potential to be a driver for real growth in the economy. Reforming the planning system could help unlock that potential or could risk creating new barriers to delivery.

The Coalition's ambitions to reform the development plan system, to provide new incentives for growth and to deliver a sustainable energy supply, present both practical and legal challenges if they are to be effective. We will be exploring those challenges in the context of the Localism Bill, our European and international obligations and the bedrock of public and environmental law.

Last year, the Planning and Environment Bar Association's conference saw over 150 practitioners attend what has been credited as a 'must attend' event, attracting planners, lawyers, surveyors and barristers in high numbers.

The conference provides delegates with the opportunity to meet, listen to and benefit from thought provoking, yet practical papers on important matters affecting practice. In addition, with the benefit of excellent networking opportunities in a first class venue, this conference will satisfy your CPD requirements at a very affordable price.

PEBA would like to acknowledge the kind use of the Freshfields lecture facilities.
